About this forum

Have you ever completed a credit card application, just to qualify for a free T-shirt or book bag? If, like most college students, you answered yes, then you must see MaxedOut, a documentary that explores the inner-workings of the Consumer Credit Card industry.

MaxedOut exposes a business model that involves granting credit to people who can neither manage, nor repay the money that they are being given. Think the lending industry doesn't lend money unless they are sure that they will get it back? Wrong. Late Fees, over-limit charges and past due interest are all money makers.

Before you fill out another credit card application for a "no fee" credit card, come see MaxedOut and find out exactly how much that "free" card will cost you.
